Scotland Research - a first look

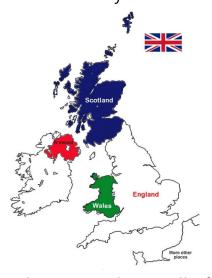

Scotland is a country with records that are seperate and distinct from England or Wales or Ireland.

You cannot do Scottish
Genealogy properly from
Ancestry.com, FamilySearch,
FindMyPast, MyHeritage etc.
because they just don't have the actual records.

Dr. Bruce Durie

Our trees often have Scottish ancesotrs that are categorized as United Kingdom. This is a title of a political unity of the area -- not a country!

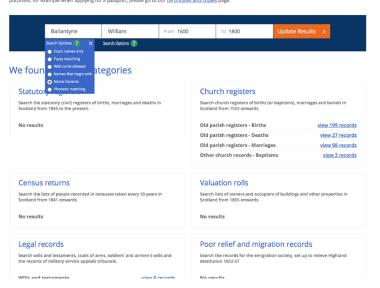

Scotland owns the copyrights to all of their images. Many of the sources in our FamilySearch tree are from indexes that are free but these are not the same as the original images. Original images can be viewed at a Family History Center if they were part of the microfilm set the LDS church did years ago or now at Scotlands People website for instant download.

You can search for free at Scotlandspeople.gov.uk - images require buying credits. These are available within 5-10 minutes of purchasing. Vital records are around 6 credits or 2.00 US dollars per image that you can view and copy as you need. Wills and Testaments are 10 credits for all of the pages in the packet.

Search results

If you need official certificates (extracts) of birth, marriage, death or divorce records for official or lega purposes, for example when applying for a passport, please go to our certificates and copies page.

Searching can be refined with the filters on the left hand side of the results listing.

Things to know about Scotland Records

Religion

The Kirk - The church
Informal name for
The Church of Scotland
OPR - Old Parochial Records
Pre-1855 church records
Wills & Testaments and Church records
Mid 1500's

Historically

Census records 1841-1911 every 10 years. 12-15 year old children were reported aged up or down

work instead of school, military service

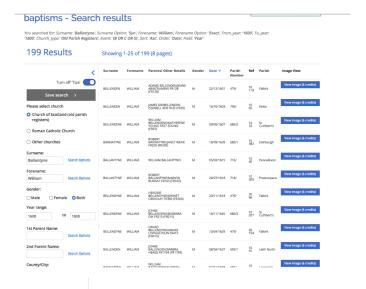

Children were renamed the same as a sibling who died.

1855 was the beginning of government record keeping - Statutory Records

Solicitor means lawyer in Scotland

Valuation Rolls were taken on the 5th year of each decade for head of household.

Searching requires the last name in the first box - and when you click on search options you get very powerful tools to help with names. My favorite is the name variant tool that helps me with name spellings I have't thought of before. This can be done for both surname and last name.

Sometimes born in a different location than the rest of the family or place of residence. This is a big clue.

Maiden names were widely used in record keeping in Scotland. The census is one of the few times just a married name was used.

If a maiden name was given it didn't necessarily mean the woman wasn't married.

Widows sometimes reverted to maiden name.

Children often took the name of the step-father.

Names

Nicknames were common

They would also change during a lifetime.

Lizzie, Liza, Eliza all used for the same person.

Common Abbreviated names

Thos for Thomas
Jas for James
Rbt for Robert
Alxr for Alexander

Surnames had many spellings - phonetic by the writer at the time

McCune McEwan

McEwin

McQuien

McQuihen

- 1. The eldest son was named for the father's father.
- 2. The second son was named for the mother's father.
- The third son was named for the father—if the name was not already used.
- 4. The eldest daughter was named for the mother's mother.
- 5. The second daughter was named for the father's mother.
- The third daughter was named for the mother—if the name was not already used.
- Additional children could be named for other relatives. If a child died, the name could be reused for a subsequent child.

A picture is worth a thousand words

But it can't be uploaded to FamilySearch due to copyright restrictions.

So add what you have learned from the image and add to the notes in Familysearch.

Liz Snow has added other links of interest for the Scotland area at https://sites.google.com/site/scotlandresearchportfolio/